

Zero Carbon Green Silk Road Expedition to Italy with EV Bus

Recently, Mr.Marco Loglio, expert of Weihai Sino-Germany Eco town, was invited by Cultural Ambassadors of Silk Road project to join an activity"Zero Carbon Green Silk Road Expedition". This activity is focusing on create a 8000km EV bus route, start from China, cross several countries on the Silk Road to Italy.

First stage of the activity started on 14th of May, the invited person began his trip by EV bus from Xi'An, it took 6 days to cross Shanxi, Gansu, finally arrived to Urumqi, Xinjiang.

Mr.Marco Loglio said, development of energy is always very important to economy devolpment, today the sustainable energy is becoming more and more popular, urgency of sustainable energy development of the countries along "the Belt and Road Initiative" hasn't been less than advanced countries.

China is the latecomer in the global automotive industry, but in the field of new energy vehicles, Chinese manufacturers are at leading position. The moment while international and domestic car manufacturers are trying hard to develop their market in China, with technical advantage and rich experiences in the field of new energy vehicles, Chinese car manufacturers are starting to develop their overseas market. "one Belt and Road Initiative" is covering areas include ASEAN(Association of Southeast Asian Nations), South Asia, Central Asia, CIS(Commonwealth of Independent States) and Central&East Europe up to 66 countries and areas, most of them are developing countries, automotive market is still premature, and Chinese new EV makers are eager to develop all those overseas markets.
